A sure way to make sure of right style and right quality at a right price is to come here—all you have to think of is how the hat looks when you try it on—whether it's the right style for your style of face. We vouch for everything else. And if you wish we can also help you in picking the height of crown and width of brim that will set off your particular style of good looks to best advantage—we have made a study of fitting men's faces as well as fitting their heads. ting their heads.

Strictly 1921 styles and plenty of them—including the new narrow-brim belicrown straws now so popular with young men. And strictly 1921 prices. $3, $4, $5 and $6. And at each price you get a heaping measure of bedrock value—the Fifth Avenue label doesn't cost you a single penny.

the future will make use of contentment, but it can do nothing with smug satisfaction. The man whose mind is closed to all proposals for change, for reasonable experiment with the unfamiliar and untested, is stubbornly without faith in the future. His mind and spirit move in a closed circle and are captives of their present environment. The free spirit will use its environment as a stepping stone to new enterprises, to new experiments and to now undertakings."

Six Women Made M.D.'s

For the first time in the history of Columbia University the degree of Doctor of Medicine wa awarded to six women, among them Mrs. Gulli Lindh Muller, who was graduated foremost in the class of thirty-four. The Hippo-cratic oath was administered by Dr. William Darrach, dean of Faculty of Medicine.

Following the commencement ceremony the alumni luncheon was held in the gymnasium, with Dr. Butler, Governor Miller and Dr. Angell the speakers. Stuyvesant Fish, president of the class of '71, which is celebrating its fiftieth anniversary, was toastmaster. Fourteen members of the class are now living, among them some of New York's foremost citizens, the complete class roster being as follows:

The Rev. Joseph Hooper, Richard Busteed Kelly, Lewis Cass Ledyard, Brander Matthews, James Otis Moore, Benjamin Franklin Romaine jr., William Henry Sage, the Rev. Henry Mason Smythe, Oscar Solomon Straus, Stuyvesant Fish, Jacob Herrick Henry, Robert Barbour, Ralph Wilcox Booth, Gurdon Saltanstall Buck, Robert Fulton Cutting and George Beach De Forest.

Two Older Grads Two Older Grads

These veterans, however, had to divide the honors at the alumni luncheon with two older grads, the Rev. R. C. Hall, of the Protestant Episcopal Church of Saint Mary the Virgin, and the Rev. Stephen F. Holmes, members of the class of '63.

of the class of '63.

Dr. Butler made an appeal to the alumni for $750,000 for the purchase of the Dyckman tract for an athletic field. This includes twenty-six acres bounded by Broadway, West 218th Street and the Harlem Ship Canal, and may be purchased up to December 21.

Governor Miller in his speech called forth a storm of applause when he commented on the growth of Columbia. "Let me say as Governor of this state," he said, "that I think Columbia has lost nothing in quality in the standard of her men and ideals, for what she has gained in quantity.

"The business men of the country need to realize," he added, "that they must support academic institutions if they are to recruit the growing army which the increasing needs of this country will demand."

Anti-Prohibition Rules

The afternoon's frivolity reached its climax with the costume parade, in which anti-prohibition sentiment ruled. South Field was blazing in the hot afternoon sun when the startled eyes of the commencement crowd visualized a mangy camel struggling across the sand. A shent rang out from a thousand parched threats and the ani-

Dr. Butler's address sto the graduates was an exhortation toward optimism, under the title, "Faith in the Future." He said:

"It pleases some ardent and hopelessly youthful spirits to portray themselves as in revolt against things as they are, but this is not the constructive temper or the spirit in which to go about the serious business of making the world better. An appreciation of the present and an understanding of the past are a far better preparation.

By Heywood Broun

Eugene O'Neill leaps high in "Gold," which was produced at the Frazee The ater last night, but it is a leap which requires a running start of three acts. The fourth act—the one in which of O'Neill comes into his own—was seen several years ago as a one-act play called "Where the Cross Is Made." "Gold" is not an expansion of that, strictly speaking, for the short piece was made by snatching it out a full-least halv."
